Board of Trade Meets On Monday Evening

Ladies and High School Students Invited to Attend

The meeting of the board of trade next Monday evening will take the form of a banquet and will be held in the basement of the Knox United Church.

Mr. Alfred Speakman was advertised as the speaker of the evening, but just as we go to press we are informed that he has been called to Ottawa in connection with the inquiry into the Marketing Act and will be unable to be present.

However, arrangements have been made through the Calgary board of trade for a prominent speaker, and Dr. Patrik will give a lecture on his travels in the South Sea Islands.

As this is an educational as well as an entertaining subject it has been decided to invite the ladies and High School students to the meeting, and it is hoped that a good number will attend.

Dr. Patrik has given this lecture before a number of boards of trade and other organizations, and from reports received we are sure of an instructive and entertaining evening.

Westcott W.I. Makes Donations to Charity

The ladies of the Westcott W.I. passed their annual donations to charities at their regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Owens on Thursday last.

Donations of $20.00 were made to the Junior Red Cross, $5.00 to the Salvation Army, $5.00 to Woods House, $5.00 to the Calgary Sun-Hill Fund, and $2.00 to Didsbury Golf Club.

The donations were made from funds raised at their bazaar and concert.

There was an attendance of 13 members and one visitor at the meeting, and the roll-call was responded to by, "What has experience taught you about being more economical in your housekeeping?"

An interesting report on the lecture, "The League of Nations and Disarmament," given by Mr. Corley at Didsbury on November 9, was given by Mrs. A. M. Robertson, and a resolution was rendered by Mrs. S. Owens.

The balance of the meeting was devoted to "Home Economics," conducted by Mrs. Shuldike, who also read an interesting paper.

The next meeting will be held on December 27 at the home of Mrs. A. M. Robertson.

Stores Open Wednesdays

During December the business houses will be open all day Wednesday.

Santa Claus Will Be Here Saturday

The kiddies of the district will be delighted to know that Santa Claus will be at the Builders Hardware store this Saturday.

He has sent word that he will arrive at the store at 2 p.m. and will stay until 6 p.m. He also said that he had candy and nuts for every kiddie who came to the store during the afternoon.

The youngsters will also be delighted to see the wonderful display. The tables and counters are crowded with toys of every description, dolls, wagons, sleighs, plates, in fact everything to make Christmas a happy time for the kiddies.

Curling Club Elects Skips

With the ice getting about ready for the sliding rock, the curlers and Monday evening to elect their skips for the first schedule. The slips-up indicate that there will be about 14 rinks on the ice, and the following 14 skips were elected:

Jim McGhee, Jack McCloy, Alf Sinder, Bert Fisher, George Julem, Alf Bruso, Alec McNaughton, Dave Sinclair, Dave Edwards, Dr. Clarke, Billy Pitt, Tommy Johnson, J. V. Berscht and W. G. Liesemer.

It was decided that at the close of the first schedule those skips having the six lowest places in the win column should not be eligible to skip in the second schedule. This will give a chance for 6 new skips for the back-end of the season.

The club will try to arrange a single-schedule visiting program with Oude, Bowden and Inverfall, also a schedule with Carstairs and Crossfield.

An open hospital will be held during the season, and a committee of Jack McCloy, J. V. Berscht, Bill McFarquhar, George Julem and W. G. Liesemer was appointed to make arrangements.

A mixed hospital for local curlers will also be held, the committee in charge being E. G. Ranton, F. Dunlop, Jim Cathunes, G. A. Wallace and Howard Halliday.

Town Council.

A meeting of the town council was held Monday evening, with Mayor Chambers in the chair. Councillors Spence, Gooder, Reiter and Flurry were present.

Dr. Liesemer appeared before the council and offered the services of the Band at the skating rink if a suitable shelter and platform were provided. It was thought that the presence of the Band at the rink would have a tendency to encourage skating, and the committee was instructed to build the necessary shelter.

Councillors Pitt and Reiter were appointed a committee to take care of the skating rink.

Mr. H. Gabel was appointed as caretaker of the rink at the same salary as last year.

The price of season tickets for skating and single admission were set at: Season ticket for Men $3.00; Ladies $2.00; School students $2.00; Children 15 years and under $1.00; Single admission, Adults 20c and Children 15 years and under 10c. Free skating for children 15 years and under, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

It was decided to make the annual inspection of all chimneys, stovepipes and furnaces, with the object of removing all fire hazards. The Mayor remarked that this inspection was one of the best methods of fire protection, and expressed a hope that all householders would welcome the inspectors and give attention to any recommendation that they may make.

Mr. R. J. Cunningham and Constable Keicher were appointed to make the inspection.

Music Recital.

The pupils of Miss Victoria Thomson gave a delightful recital at the Knox Church on Friday evening, and those present were delighted with the performance of the youthful artists, and the teacher deserves much credit.

Those who took part were: Betty, Sammy and Mary Bowman, Betty, Rob, Nona and Dot Barrett, Jean and Mary Robertson, Winnie, Kathleen and Margaret Alshed, Edith and Vera Sinclair, Marguerite Fisher, Joy Berscht, Jean McLeod, Shirley Cameron, Stanley Harris, Walter Harris, Lyla Walsh, Marjorie Burns and Harold Walkley.

An innovation was a toy band by the children, ably led by Bob Barrett.

Home Stores Get Ready For Christmas

A visit through the stores in town shows that every store is getting ready for the Christmas season.

The local merchants all realize the necessity of keeping their stocks up to date, and in addition to their Christmas goods they have full lines of seasonal goods.

The grocery stores are all so clean, bright and inviting, and the stocks of Christmas candies and good things for the table, make one almost wish that Christmas was nearer.

The dry goods stores are replete with everything for winter wear and are showing innumerable articles of wear which make Christmas gifts of the most useful kind, many of them all wrapped and boxed ready for giving.

The hardware stores and drug store with their wonderful display of gifts of silverware and china, toys, dolls, books and novelties, are a veritable Santa Claus Land and will be the centre of interest with people generally, and the young people in particular.

Even the garages are not backward and you can find Christmas gifts for the car—hot water heaters, hood covers and many gadgets suitable for Christmas giving.

Look around the local stores and you will find almost anything you desire for the Christmas season.

Didsbury East 'Phones Organize.

The telephone subscribers east of town organized the Didsbury East Mutual Telephone Company at a meeting held at Community Hall on Tuesday evening.

The following officers were elected:

The Secretary will be appointed by the directors.

Several subscribers have already signed up and the directors will call on the other telephone users within the next few days to complete the sign-up.

Greatest Hunt For Gold In The History Of Canada Has Been Carried On Over Wide Area

A reason that brought what is believed to have been the greatest hunt for gold in Canada's history is drawing to a close. No figures are available to show the exact number of prospectors and assistants who struggled through often inhospitable country, but a careful approximation indicates a total of about 18,000.

Increased prices for the yellow metal spurred prospectors' activity. An added factor was extensive use of aeroplanes, which provided access to new districts and revealed existence of still more. Aerial photography, it is said, has revolutionized the metal-mining industry.

Pictures taken from speeding new planes tell experts much. The topographical survey of the Department of the Interior produced 40,000 aerial photographs during the summer. From these, most of them taken in Northern Manitoba, Athabasca, Great Bear and Great Slave regions and in the Nahanni district near the Yukon boundary, maps are being developed.

Planes of the Royal Canadian Air Force, carrying aerial surveyors, make flights over the famous Long Lake district in Northwestern Ontario. Some flights were made in other provinces. Much of the aerial photography this year was designed to help gold seekers.

Luck, prospectors and geologists say, is still the most important factor in the hunt for gold and less valuable metals. Once a tree was blown down. Its roots tore up the surrounding soil and bared what developed to be one of the richest veins ever discovered in Canada. Last summer a prospector stopped on the shore of a lake because a high wind endangered his canoe. While he waited for the storm to abate he discovered what is regarded as one of the most important finds of the year. Such incidents are said to make prospectors superstitious.

Aerial photography has removed some of the chance from prospecting. In the field most who seek to contain gold and the territory where the soil, or what miners call "overburden," is too deep for them to find workable veins, even if they did exist. They help him concentrate his efforts where it is most likely to succeed.

Pictures show granite formations in which metals are seldom found, and, on the other hand, indicate geological "faults" and great fractures where profitable mineralization is more probable.

Stereoscopes played over the pictures show the valleys and hills in relief. After discovery of a vein a study of the pictures helps in development, as it shows the contour of the country and what rock strata route for a road and most advantageous location for a mill.

In the files of the topographical survey 600,000 negatives are kept, and a sufficient number of prints are available to prevent any possible shortage.

Got What She Wanted

Action of New York Girl Would Seem Justifiable

Another story of an individual bucking the tide of big business is told us by a young lady who wanted sex buttons. She found the type she wanted at Altman's, but told the girl she needed a size larger than those on display. The girl asked her what color, and our young lady said the color didn't matter, because she was going to cover them with cloth. Altman's covered buttons, the girl said, and would be pleased to do the covering. The young lady said she'd like to cover her own buttons, please. In that case, the girl said, she couldn't sell the buttons. Altman's never sold buttons for covering. Then our young lady drew herself together and told a little white lie. She would take sex buttons, and wouldn't ever think of recovering them. The girl sold them. The New Yorker.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAWRENCE HUBBERT
(Grapho-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

Editor's Note: Hundreds of readers have written in asking the author for personal character analysis. Have you? The well-known Grapho-Analyst who is writing this series of fascinating articles will be glad to tell you what your writing reveals. See the special offer at the end of the article.

This week, there are several letters that have a general appeal to a good many of my readers, dealing as they do, with situations that may well arise for anyone. Miss C. of Winnipeg, says: I am a stenographer, but simply don't like it. I am unhappy and feel that I am wasting my time. I have drafted a bit with pen and drawing, and have been able to make a little extra money now and again in this way. What do you advise?

There are very definite indications in your writing that you have a rare talent for artistic work. Some of my correspondents ask should they take up art as a career, and I am forced to advise them against it. But in your case, I can very earnestly suggest that you can take up drawing as a career. This does not mean, of course, that you are to give up your present occupation at once.

You must take up your art work, seriously, but in your spare time. Work hard at it, take a good course, because it will pay you in the long run, and when you are in a position to make a career of it, then you can give up your stenographic work.

A widow in the North country was over 28 years of age, and had two children. I have been keeping company with a gentleman for some time, and he wants me to marry him. He says that he divorced his first wife, as she was unfaithful, and did not care for him, preferring to go about. I have a bit of money and am wondering whether I should marry my friend or whether I should continue looking after my children. Please tell me what I should do.

I am sorry that I cannot recommend you to marry your friend. His writing is that of a deceitful and rather dishonest person. My correspondent would be far better off to remain as she is. She can, at least, see that her children are properly looked after. If she were to marry her friend, she would be in for some unhappy times.

She is not old yet, and will very likely have other opportunities of meeting someone who would make her a good husband, and see that the children were adequately looked after. But in any case, she is better off as she is now, than if she married the man she has in mind.

Miss S., living in a Toronto suburb, writes: My best friend has returned to Germany, having lost his employment here. He said that he would either come back or send for me. Will he remain in love with me? Should I wait for him?

This is a case where Grapho-Analyst alone is not sufficient. I have to call in the aid of psychology. Your friend is of a very affectionate and impulsive nature. He is reliable enough, and undoubtedly meant what he said when he told you he would marry you one day. But he is a long distance from you, and my advice to you is to cultivate other friends. Do not shut the company of other boys.

You will know before very long whether your boy friend is still faithful to you. But it may be that he will stop writing. He may meet someone over there whom he likes better. And the blow will not be so hard to you if you have other friends. So I advise you not to do as you say about having nothing to do with other boys. That is unattractive and will not help you very much. On the other hand, it may embitter your nature, more particularly if you find your friend forgets you.

Do you want your character revealed from your handwriting? And to find out your friends are as you like? Send specimens of the writing you want analysed, and enclose 10c for each. Send with the specimens addressed envelope, to: Lawrence Hubbert, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 100-101-102, Victoria Ave., Winnipeg, P. M. Letters will be answered as soon as possible but please allow about two weeks for your reply.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Your Own "Candid Camera"

A "candid camera" snapshot, replete with the treacherous atmosphere of an unhappy moment, it tells the whole story.

Some magazines and newspapers make a game to do about "candid camera" pictures, so called because they portray the great and important in unguarded moments and poses.

Many "candid camera" shots have been made at banquets, receptions, conferences and other such affairs. They show notables being thoroughly human, unaware of the presence of a camera.

Naturally such pictures have a lot of appeal. For they show people as they really are—eating, talking, working.

These candid snapshots are usually made with very small cameras equipped with exceptionally fast lenses and film. Such cameras do not need brilliant light, and they can be handled as casually that they do not become conspicuous.

But you don't need any such camera to make your own "candid camera" snapshots. Of course, you will not be able to shoot under ordinary room lighting, unless your camera has an f.3.5 lens, or faster—but you will still have ample opportunity in places where the light is better.

For example, do you have a picture of Dad, or Uncle, or Brother fighting his pipe? Now, couldn't he have characteristic—and yet it's the sort

Indian States Pay High Tribute To Lord Willingdon By Erecting Statue In His Honor

Family Life In Russia

May Be Wrecked By Duty Of Citizens To State

A wholesome family life holds any race together. Nations crumble when the sanctity of the home is disregarded or social laws are abrogated. It is not unlikely the Soviet union of Russia may smash on that phase alone for the Bolsheviks or new fathers there are playing with fire. In discussions in Russian newspapers the young communists are asking if it is possible to continue the family organization and at the same time discharge their regimental duties to the state. The burden of the correspondence is the complaint that the amount of work required of citizens by the community leaves neither men nor women sufficient time to develop a wholesome and affectionate family relationship. Some frankly ask why, if it interferes with the discharge of the duties imposed by the state, family life should not disappear, at any rate for the present. The appalling implications of this suggestion show how far the process of regimentation has diverted the mind of Soviet youth. Brandon Sun.

Manitoba Pension Plan

No Change In System Contemplated By Government

Changes in the Old Age Pensions Act in Ontario proposed by Hon. David Croft, minister of public welfare, appeared to be a move toward the system now in effect in Manitoba. C. K. Nowcomb, administrator of Manitoba old age pensions, states:

In Winnipeg applications for old age pensions were made to the social welfare committee. In other Manitoba towns applications were made to municipal councils. These, whose applications were rejected may appeal to Mr. Nowcomb for a hearing.

Mr. Nowcomb said he had no reason to believe any changes in the system were contemplated by the provincial government at present.

It is an honor almost unique that the princes of the Indian states are paying Lord Willingdon, viceroy of India. They have subscribed funds with which a statue in his honor will be erected in New Delhi—"to express" in the words of the official announcement, "the high esteem and regard in which the Viceroy is held by the princes generally and to commemorate his long and distinguished connection with the country."

The success of Lord Willingdon's service as governor-general of Canada led his friends to believe he had the qualities demanded by the much more onerous responsibilities of his Indian post, and they have not been disappointed. In this Dominion he displayed democratic dignity, was an upholder of tradition, but not a stickler for form. His authority did not rest upon conventionality, nor was his influence bounded by the limits of his high office. He went to the trouble of learning Canadian, of understanding the Canadian viewpoint, and in every branch of his public service he had the extremely competent support of his wife.

In the larger spheres of Indian affairs Lord Willingdon has demonstrated by these same qualities and by a happy and rare combination of firmness with tact—his right to be ranked with the great pro-consuls of British India. When he went to India something more than three years ago the country was rent with disorder, the fanatic Gandhi was a power in the land and the centre of disaffection and unrest, and there was serious resistance to the British plan of broadening self-government of the Indian people as they were educated to accept responsibility for their own administration. Since that time the Viceroy has not done anything spectacular, but the picture today is vastly different one. Gandhi is in eclipse, his following largely gone. The country is peaceful, rarely takes its way into the news columns.

And this has been accomplished, we imagine, largely because Lord Willingdon is tactful and shrewd and kind, because it is known he will not tolerate injustice, because his policy in India, as in Canada, is founded on common sense. Ottawa Journal.

Leads In Literary Output

Russia Claims Production Of Greatest Number Of Books

Soviet Russia, a generation ago the most illiterate country of Europe, has been assessing its literary achievements and to-day boasts that in the production of books it has surpassed not only every other nation, but even the United States and Germany combined.

Just recently 500 Soviet authors met in the first All-Union Writers' congress, and laid down the general lines of Russian literature for the future.

In connection with their meeting, figures have been published that show the vast progress the Soviet has made in book publishing since the revolution.

Not less than five million books have been issued within the last 15 years.

Within the past five years the circulation of the writings of Maxim Gorki, the Soviet laureate, has been 18,900,000 copies.

Sholokov, author of "Still Flows the Don," has sold 2,000,000 copies.

And even poetry, ranking well below prose in other countries, has vast popularity in Russia. Official figures place the circulation of Dostoevsky's verse at 7,000,000.

The yellow meal worm is a pest that is easily dealt with in winter time in Canada. With the meal in flour placed outside Official figured accepted, see temperature will kill all the pests in a night. If the temperature does not go below 20 degrees Fahrenheit, it is better, says the Dominion Entomologist, to leave the food out two days.

Poultry Marketing Board, Livestock Marketing Board

By E. W. Braunsden
Acting Secretary

Along with the interest being aroused throughout the province by proposals to market farm products
under the Natural Products Marketing Act, there are heard some criticisms of the proposals themselves, and others of the work of the producer-groups fostering these proposals.

Most of these criticisms are the result of a lack of correct information; some of them arise through misinterpretation of the proposals.
There is an impression in some quarters that governments are about to invade the field of farm products marketing. In others, that the chief purpose is the establishing of gigantic selling pools; and in still others that existing packing-house, distributing and retail organizations are to be thrust aside, and new structures, built at great expense, are to take their places. All of these are in error.

It must be borne in mind that the representative producers who have taken the initiative in formulating Alberta's marketing plans under the Marketing Act, for the benefit not only of themselves, but of all their fellow-producers, have done their work without the assistance of previously existing organizations,
and entirely without organization funds. It is to the credit of these groups that they have devoted long hours of their time, and financed themselves while attending meetings
in attempting to make it possible for Alberta poultry and livestock producers to take advantage of the Natural Products Marketing Act, if, after careful consideration, the Alberta producers so desire.

To date the Alberta boards have had no funds wherewith to place
huge printing orders, send explanatory matter to farmers through the mail, buy advertising space in newspapers, hire halls and pay speakers,
or purchase hours on the radio.

At its last session the parliament of Canada recognized the handicap
under which producers of farm products would labor in organizing under the Marketing Act, and a sum was voted for their use in this connection. A share of this sum will be available for use to Alberta in due course, and at that time every producer will have ample opportunity of learning of the proposed plans
in detail.

Both groups in this province, the poultrymen and the livestock producers, have asked that their marketing plans be not declared operative until votes of those to be affected are taken. On these votes will rest the future of marketing in this province. These votes will be taken after all producers have had the opportunity to fully acquaint themselves with the subject.

These marketing plans are not government-controlled or influenced.
They have been created, are being advanced, and will be guided and controlled by the farm and ranch operators of Alberta through their elected representatives. The two boards named by the minister of agriculture at request of representative gatherings of producers, were so named that the organization work

might proceed as orderly and speedily as possible. After the first year of operation the members of these boards will be elected by direct vote
of the producers.

The term "compulsory pools" is being loosely used. Under the Alberta poultry marketing plan it is proposed to handle the products on a pool basis. Precision in the grading of eggs and poultry, and the success of existing poultry pools, not in Alberta, but in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, makes the proposal a justifiable one. It is not proposed, however, to erect a new structure
on the ashes of the Alberta Poultry Pool. The Alberta organization that will be responsible to the farmer
for his financial returns will have no relationship whatever to any previously existing, or existing body.
It will be a new organization, the personnel of which will be drawn from all ranks of poultry producers and all sections of the province.

The Canadian Poultry Pool Ltd.
is named in the poultry marketing plan as the central selling agency for Alberta products. The naming of a central selling agency is required
when a marketing plan is submitted to the Federal Marketing Board
under the Natural Products Marketing Act, and the success of the Canadian Poultry Pool Ltd. in both domestic and export markets during recent years, is sufficient warrant for its designation as the selling agency in the Alberta plan.

In the livestock marketing plan provision is made for "pooling" at the discretion of the board. It may here be emphasized that both the livestock and poultry marketing plans include powers to be vested in the Alberta boards, not necessarily for immediate use, but also for use in emergencies that may today be un-thought of. Obviously all of the powers of these boards need not today be exercised, some of them may never be required, but in the event of a disastrous situation arising,
whatever be its nature, the boards have the abilities to act decisively in behalf of the industries, through the powers requested for them under the Marketing Act.

Pooling of hogs is a common and successful practice. It has yet to be demonstrated that cattle can be pooled satisfactorily. To refer to the Alberta livestock marketing plan as a "compulsory pool" is to misstate
the case.

Nor is there any intention to displace any organization at present rendering a useful and competent service in the distributing of eggs, poultry or livestock. It is noteworthy that the Retail Merchants' Association in Alberta is not opposed as being opposed to the poultry marketing plan. In this proposal the retailer has as much to gain as the producer through the orderly disposal of his surplus stocks. There is no intention in either scheme to displace the packer, the cold storage agency, or the retailer. All that the producers' marketing plans ask is that these shall be subject to license by the boards, that a measure of control may be exercised in the interest of the industry at large.

A limited supply of the poultry marketing plan is available for distribution. Those desiring a copy should write to: The Alberta Poultry Marketing Board, 606 Northwestern Investment Bldg., Edmonton.
Those wishing a copy of the livestock marketing plan, shortly to be issued in limited volume, should write the Alberta Livestock Marketing Board, 502 Gait Exchange, Edmonton.

"...So that Our Visitors
will be Sorry to Leave"

"If we are going to invite people to this country,
we must be honest with them... Courtesy costs nothing and is one of our greatest tourist assets
... Let us so treat strangers within our gates that it will be easy for them to come, pleasant for them to stay, and difficult for them to leave."

Re Hon. R. B. BENNETT, Prime Minister of Canada, in the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureau, November 6, 1934.

Canada's tourist activities represent more than a great industry from which everybody benefits. They provide an opportunity to create what the Prime Minister has described as "that feeling of neighbourliness" which is such a vital factor in building up cordial relations within the family of nations.

For both these reasons, may I urge upon the people of Canada the importance of showing consideration, courtesy and honesty to guests of our country? Let us all do those little acts of kindness which count for so much when one travels in a strange land.

We have a beautiful country. We must keep it so. We want our visitors to travel highways free from disfigurement, walk the streets of cities that are orderly and clean, and find at the end of every day's travel an inviting spot to rest. Canadians should turn their attention now to the important work of preparing for next year's tourist season.

As a nation, we are advertising abroad the attractions of Canada as a holiday land. We must see to it that our guests return home with only the happiest recollections—and the determination to come back again and again.

Nor should we forget, in planning our own vacations, that there are beauties to discover and friendships to be made in our neighbouring provinces. We live in one of the world's most glorious playgrounds—let us learn to know better the rich variety of its travel attractions.

Little Journeys In Science

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Historians tell us that the Egyptians discovered how to make glass. The production of glass on a large scale started in Egypt about 1370 B.C. Alkali (sodium carbonate) was melted with crushed quartz, limestone, and copper compounds in crucibles to give a blue glass. Glass made in Egypt was shipped to all parts of the Roman Empire.

Science has shown the modern manufacturer how to produce many new and useful kinds of glass. Ordinary glass, which is composed of soda, lime and sand, cracks readily when suddenly heated or cooled. If common glass is heated strongly it softens, and vessels made from it change their shape. The addition of boron compounds, and certain metallic oxides to the formula of ordinary glass produces a type of glass known as dura glass, which can stand high temperatures. Recently scientists have produced pyrex glass by replacing some or all of the lime with aluminum or some other metals.

Pyrex glass is strong and stands changes in temperature so well that cooking dishes can be manufactured from it. Silica, commonly known as sand, can be converted into a transparent glass known as silica glass, which can be heated to redness and plunged into cold water without being fractured.

Optical glass for lenses of all kinds is produced by adding lead oxide to the glass mixture. Optical glass must be free from all color-producing materials and must also be free from bubbles and small air bubbles or stringy waves. Cheap imitations of gems are made from glass very rich in lead, tin, and antimony. The glass of which cut-glass vessels is made is of this same kind but it contains less lead.

Recently a plate glass has been produced in England which has special strength and toughness. The glass does not splinter when broken, but forms small comparatively harmless fragments. This tougher glass is about five times as strong as ordinary plate glass.

Where Professors Disagree

Have Different Theories About Common Cold Being Catching

Sometimes one wonders whether the published discoveries of scientists are real discoveries or merely attempts to start a new theory. "This in the matter of academic debate may often be desirable; particularly when progress seems to be arrested it is profitable to go back and deliberately question and even deny previously accepted theories. However, when this is done, the public must not suppose that the new data are necessarily true or that the old are false.

Something of the sort has been happening with regard to the investigation of common colds. Two California professors have challenged existing theories. It is said: "They have not been able, they say, to infect one person with the cold of another. Inoculation will not work, and they doubt very much if the theories held almost as household maxims about the disease being highly catching. They think also that germs are a result, not the cause, of the disease."

Some day presumably we shall know.

Sheep Clip Shows Increase

B.C. Shipping Half Million Pounds Of Wool To United Kingdom

About 500,000 pounds of wool, representing the spring clip of the flocks controlled by the B.C. Sheep-Breeders' Association, have been assembled, graded and packed at the Pacific Coast Terminals, Ltd. warehouse, New Westminster, for export to the United Kingdom.

Its value, at a minimum price of 10 cents a pound, will be approximately $50,000.

This shipment is reported to be the largest ever assembled for export from the Fraser river. The volume is nearly double that of last year, which was 300,000 pounds.

Up until last year the B.C. wool clip was assembled at Kamloops and shipped by rail to Toronto, where it was graded for export to Liverpool. B.C. breeders discovered they can save approximately 1 1/2 per cent by shipping their product by water via the Panama Canal.

The wool is received from the Fraser valley, Okanagan, Kootenay and Vancouver Island. Individual shipments range from a few pounds to many thousands.

"Old Matt," a familiar character in London, who is estimated to have opened the doors of more than 2,000,000 private cars, taxicabs and hansom cabs, had died in that city, aged 74. His name was Walter Matthews, and for thirty years he was the carriage attendant outside Simpson's in the Strand. In his youth he was a noted boxer, and later went to New York as a butler. Since returning to London he declined several offers to return to the United States.

Dustin swung about to face a gray little figure that stiffened at sight of him. Slim Peters had been cashier of the Seco Bank for more than thirty years. Scotch by descent and cautious by nature, only once had he ventured to extend his activities beyond Seco. He was like Kipling's muskrat that all his life tried to muster courage to run to the middle of the floor. Peters mustered that courage once—and Dustin caught him with a loan of five thousand dollars on his house. That loan saved Peters his bank job but it made him the bookkeeper of Sam Dugan.

"Just a moment, Peters," Dustin drew him aside. "How much money does old man Carr owe the bank? I've got to know."

"The bank?" Peters quavered. "He doesn't owe the bank at all, Mr. Dustin. He did owe the bank but old man Pegram took it up. It's a note and Mr. Pegram's wonderin' right now what to do with it. He's lost a lot of money and needs cash."

"How much is the note for?" "Well, I don't know," said Peters. "I say interest on it for a year. It's about twelve thousand dollars right now. And I'll tell you more."

"Old man Pegram better let go all books on it just as soon as he can. Old Carr's in a bad way," said Peters. "This better gave a great jump. Dustin bent hard in that dark hole. He stared hard at the little figure before him."

"I've got a five thousand dollar note of yours, Peters," he said. "I secured by this house and lot, oh?"

"Yes, sir. That's so. . . . Something hard in his throat seemed to choke the little gray cashier."

"That note of yours is due next week. I want that note of Carr's that Pegram's got. See?"

"I . . . sir . . . I swear I don't see how I can fix it. It's Mr. Pegram's private business. I . . ."

More than ever did Slim Peters regret that accident by which he was was to remove him and his old wife from any danger of poverty. He made one final wriggle for escape.

"As matters stand, I don't see how it can help you to own a half share of the Hour-glass ranch," he said.

"Half of it! You're a plain fool, Peters. I'll own the whole place; Soda Springs and all," he added. "Old man Carr owns the Hour-glass, don't he?"

"He owns half of it," said Peters. "That's all. When old man Peter Vinton died, he left the Hour-glass half to Joe Carr, his old partner, and half to his sister's son, one Gerald Keene. When Carr wanted to borrow on his half of the place, we had to look up the will. That's how I know. I saw the will. It says that if either Carr or Keene dies, his half goes to the survivor."

"For the love o' God . . ." Dustin was breathless. . . . "Say that again."

"Peters said it again and Dustin, sure that he had not misunderstood, let go a smoke-screen of profanity. It was not the jovial profanity of good-nature but the virile exorcism of one who fears he has been hurt and who is not sure of the extent of the injury. In one brief kaleidoscopic moment the failure of his plans returned sure. If Gerald Keene, the nephew of old Peter Vinton, owned half the Hour-glass then he, Sam Dustin, even if he succeeded in ousting Joe Carr, was only getting a new partner whom he did not even know.

He sized old Peters and whirled him about in the moonlight to face him. There was but one thing to be done. Too much depended on what old Kane knew? That miserable old desert-rat could send him and Spike to jail for a half a lifetime and Joe Carr could keep him out of a fortune. The situation came in a sudden storm of ill-considered impulse.

"If you want to keep a roof over your old wife's head," he snarled, "you buy up for me every scrap of paper that old Carr has signed. I want to own the half-share of the Hour-glass. Get me!"

Peters gaped helplessly at him. "I mean what I say, you old fool. Where can I find this man Gerald Keene? The man who owns the other half of the Hour-glass?"

"I don't know, Mr. Dustin. I swear I don't. Nobody knows. Even Mr. Carr doesn't know. He's been tryin' to find him through Mr. Burley of the Drovers Bank in Cato but he wrote us that he was handling Mr. Keene's business and that Mr. Keene was travelling somewhere and couldn't be reached just now."

Dustin grunted dubiously but he could do nothing at present. He had plenty of money in the bank and Peters knew it. There was no question of the validity of the check that Dustin wrote at the hotel desk and passed to the gray-faced little cashier who took it shakily. He pouted, he refused a cigar and headed for the bank feeling like a condemned criminal who has received notice of an unexpected reprieve.

"I'm sorry for old Carr," he muttered. "But I can't help it. I can't see Mame go to the Poorhouse and that's what'll happen if Dustin sues out that note. Oh, hell! What's the use kickin'. But I wish I could put a spoke in Dustin's wheel."

He saw Pegram at the bank who was only too glad to get rid of Carr's note for Dustin's check and he turned that over to Dustin who promptly headed back for the Broken Spur. He found Spike anxiously awaiting him and he was drawn into the office by a nod from his partner.

"What luck, Sam?" "The best in the world except for one thing. I found out that old Carr does not own all the Hour-glass. He owns half of it. The other half belongs to one Gerald Keene, nephew of old Peter Vinton. If either Carr or Keene dies, the other gets the whole place."

"Well?" said Spike who saw no further than the end of his nose. "You call it well, do you? Damned if I do. I can't get at this man Keene. No one seems to know his address. If I could find him, I'd offer to buy his share of the Hour-glass. One thing is sure now, though. We've simply got to find out from old Kane the exact place where he located that one."

"I hope you can shut his damned mouth," said Spike passionately. "Ed Raynor, the tax collector, was here for grub and old man Kane began shootin' off his face. He was stragglin' in day after day about what he sent 'em doin' up in the hills. I headed him off in time and I don't think Raynor caught on to what he

New Aid in Preventing Colds
Leads to Plan for Better
Control of Colds

PLAN EASY TO FOLLOW

Years ago, the Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern method of treating colds. Now, Vicks Chemists have developed the ideal companion to VapoRub—Vicks Vapo-nol—the new aid in preventing colds. These two preparations, together with a few simple rules of health, form the unique Vicks Plan for the Control of Colds. The helpfulness of Vicks Plan in reducing the number, duration and dangers of colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians. (The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.) Here, briefly, is how Vicks Plan works:

To Help Prevent Colds
Watch yourself and children after exposure to any condition apt to be followed by a cold, such as: Contact with others having active colds; crowded, public places; stuffy air-ventilated rooms; sudden changes in temperature; wet or cold or unaccustomed exposure; excursions in living which lower resistance, such as over-eating, smoking or drinking after a hard day when you are over-tired.

Then, if you have that stuffy, sneezy irritation in the nasal passages where most colds start, use Vicks Vapo-nol at once—just a few drops up each nostril. Use in time. Vapo-nol helps loosen mucus, soothes annoying colds, and to those of colds in their early stages.

To Help Shorten a Cold
If a cold has developed or strikes without warning, apply Vicks VapoRub over throat and chest at bedtime. Through the skin, VapoRub acts direct like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors are inhaled with every breath, thus reaching the inflamed air-passages. This combined double action through the night loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, eases difficult breathing, helps break congestion.
During the day, any time any place, use Vicks Vapo-nol every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment without the risks of constant interval dosing, which so often upsets the digestion, especially of children.

Trial Packages Free
Vicks suggests free combination packages containing trial sizes of Vapo-nol and VapoRub, also folder telling how these twin aids to fewer and shorter colds are used in Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Ask for yours today, as your druggist's supply is limited.

"Kritiks' Korner."

The Christmas decorations in the various store windows add a very cheerful atmosphere to the business district. The Christmas season comes but once a year to shed its happiness and brightness upon our humdrum existence. We should therefore yield ourselves to the holiday spirit
as fully as possible, so as to benefit from it as much as we can. We should each of us try to realize the peace and goodwill that is the secret of the joy of Christmas-time. In order to get the most out of anything we undertake, we first have to put something into it. If we would be made glad we must try to make others happy, and shall we not get farther in our doing for others, than to merely to decorate the store windows to induce people to buy goods.
Why not have a "Community Tree," some decorations and lights in the business district, and a more general lighting and decorating of homes?
Most Christmas are dominated entirely by the "dollar" motive.
Instead of thinking only of what we will get out of it, let us this year
see how much we can put into it—
and our reward will be in proportion.
Above all let us have "kind words,
kind thoughts and smiling faces"—
for those whom we meet and with whom we deal.

gall, "I thank ye for the advice and I'll no bother ye after all. Good night."
